Could use some grinding possibilities since I wanted to try everything out in one playthrough but I just didn't have the money and enemies don't respawn. But overall fun experience for the price. The developer actually listens to the feedback on forums and interacts directly which is really nice.. I've played it for about 10 minutes, and so far I can see the inspiration for the game. - It seems to have a battle system much akin to Heroes of Might and Magic - The experience/reward system after battle is as well - The story line so far is compelling. The king is attached, village is, must go rescue them - The classes are pretty cool, reminds me of Gauntlet a little I'm looking forward to playing it more! StartupTim Note: Despite being a Steam developer myself, I paid for this game with my own money, was not offered a copy for review, etc. These are my own thoughts.. Great game, and definitely has good replay value with the multiple classes and companions to pick from to create a dynamic party, and the rare items offer interesting choices to the player on how to build your characters. The artwork and music really suit the game, so a big thumbs up from me.. The UI takes a little getting used to (should be improved in next patch) but in general it is fun. Could be a bit longer? Looks like I beat the game in 8 hours. But the game is priced accordingly..
